

Who's invited to the party?

At the party, there were many really different outfits. One extremely chatty animal told Marie Elaine that other friendly animals sometimes came to these parties. She mentioned quite unusual creatures like peacocks and very common animals like squirrels. She also pointed out an owl, who arrived slightly late, looking rather weary. Even mice, she said, have been known to be invited, although often they were exceedingly timid. The only animal never invited were dogs. "They are horrible!" she scowled, 'Exceedingly rude and dreadfully scary. We do not invite nasty, truly disgusting, dogs!"
